

Jelena Puđak (301041):

Jelena Puđak was born in 1984, Zagreb. In year 2007 she got a degree in philosophy and sociology on Centre for Croatian Studies, University of Zagreb. In year 2008/2009 she starts to attend Postgraduate doctoral study of sociology, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, University of Zagreb. In October 2013 She got doctor's degree in sociology (dissertation title: Croatia and Climate Change - Sociological Analysis of state and effectiveness of policies for greenhouse gass emission reduction).

From January 2008 till today she has worked on project "Sustainable development of Croatia", and as a member of Functional centre for research of sustainable development and integral sustainability.

She is also a member of directors board of Croatian centre "Knowledge for Environment", an institution that is dealing with environmental education and sustainable development. Within that institution she has participated in EU Life 3 project "Training for implementation of UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and Kyoto protocol in Croatia". She is co-author of a book "Drop that overfills the glass - Climate change: world and Croatia".

From year 2008 till year 2012 she participates in class conduction of Social ecology, Department of Sociology, Centre for Croatian studies in Zagreb.

In her scientific career (2008 - today) she has published eight bibliographic units, of which co-authorship on a book, co-authorship on a study and a repertory, and author of five scientific papers. In same period she has participated with presentation in five international scientific conferences, and one domestic scientific conference.