

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Alica Wertheimer-Baletić (1937), academician, university professor at the Faculty of Economics in Zagreb and regular member of the Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts. The school year 1966/67 she spent in the United States, at the University of Chicago. She teaches courses in demography in regular study programmes and at postgraduate study, and periodically lectures on specific topics (in Zagreb, Osijek, Sarajevo, at the Study Centre for Social Work at the Faculty of Law, University in Zagreb, etc). In the period 1968-1972, she was a Head of the Department of Demography at the Institute for Social Researches, University of Zagreb. She was also a Head of the Department of Demography at the Faculty of Economics, University of Zagreb. Participated in numerous domestic and international research projects and conferences on population. The author of more than 150 scientific and professional papers and publications – books, articles, discussions and research expertises.

Agneza Szabo, Ph.D. graduated History at the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Zagreb. She earned her M.Sc. degree at the same Faculty in 1978, and Ph.D. degree in 1983. Since 1985, a senior research assistant. She was employed at the Zagreb City Museum and in the period 1981-1994 she was external collaborator at the Croatian Institute of History of the University of Zagreb. Since then she has been engaged in the scientific project for the Humanistic Sciences at the Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts (external collaborator). From 1992 to 2000 she acted as a collaborating expert for history handbooks at the Ministry of Education at the Republic of Croatia and was the author of the curriculum for teaching history in primary and secondary schools. She was also a collaborator of the Croatian Radio and a permanent member of several professional associations. Received several public recognitions and awards, such as “Josip Juraj Strossmayer”

Award from the Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts for an outstanding scientific work (1993). The author of two monographs from the Croatian history of the 19th century, and a co-author in a number of other publications. She has published more than 70 original scientific papers and more than 300 professional papers dealing with the history of Croatia. She has devoted special attention to social structure of the 19th-century population including problem of depopulation in historical demography, particularly in the late 19th and early 20th century.

Ivan Čizmić (1934), Ph.D. a historian and research advisor at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences. The fields of his scientific interest are: social history, emigration and immigration and political history. He is the author of five books from the history of the Croatian emigration and more than fifty scientific and professional papers. He has participated in several dozens of scientific meeting in Croatia and abroad.

Dražen Živić (1968), Ph.D., a research associate at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences. His primary focus of scientific interest is demography, in particular the development of Croatian population and demographic consequences of the Homeland War. Participated in a number of Institute's scientific projects and in dozens of scientific and professional meetings in Croatia and abroad. He is the principal investigator on the scientific project "Demographic losses and Consequences of the Homeland War". Published about fifty scientific and professional papers. Teaches Demography and Demographic Tendencies in Croatia in the 20th Century at the Croatian Studies (programme: Sociology). In 2001 he received the State Award for Science for young scientists in the field of social sciences.

Anđelko Akrap (1954), Ph.D., an associate professor at the Department for Demography, Faculty of Economics University of Zagreb. His particular interests are regional demographic problems in Croatia. Published more than forty scientific and professional papers and two books as a co-author.

Nenad Pokos (1965) Ph.D., a demographer and research associate at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences. He participated in or worked independently on the number of research Institute projects. Published more than thirty scientific and professional papers in the field of demography. At the Croatian Studies (programme: Sociology) he teaches Demography and Demographic Tendencies in Croatia in the 20th Century.

Gordan Črpić (1966) M.Sc., employed at the Center for Promotion of the Social Teachings of the Church established by the Croatian Conference on Bishops. He graduated Sociology, Theology and Electrical Engineering. He earned his M.Sc. degree in sociology, in the field Sociology of Religion. His research interest is sociology of religion. With his contributions he participated in a number of research projects at home and abroad. Published about two dozens of scientific papers and a number of professional articles.

Ivo Nejašmić (1948) Ph.D., graduated Geography at the Faculty of Science, University of Zagreb and earned his M.Sc. and Ph.D. degrees at the same faculty. He was an assistant and research associate at the Centre for Migration Research in Zagreb (today: Institute for Migrations and Ethnic Studies) and in the Croatian Bureau for Statistics (Department for Demography). In 1993 he got employed at the Faculty of Philosophy - Pedagogical Sciences (today Teachers' Training Academy, University of Zagreb). At the Department for Training of Teachers he has been teaching several subjects (Basics in geography, Demogeography and Geography of Croatia). He is a full professor at the Department of Geography, Faculty of Science University of Zagreb. Author of a university handbook and a textbook. Published over fifty scientific and professional papers - mostly on spatial movability, depopulation and bioreproduction of the Croatian population.

Ksenija Bašić, Ph.D., graduated and achieved her Ph.D. degree at the Department of Geography, Faculty of Science University of Zagreb. She lectures on the subject Demogeography and Urban Geography. Participated in several scientific meetings at home and abroad.

Ivan Lajić (1950) Ph.D., graduated at the Faculty of Economics and at the Faculty of Political Sciences, University of Zagreb. Senior research assistant at the Institute for Migrations and Ethnic Studies in Zagreb. His research interests are focused on depopulation, especially depopulation and revitalization of the Adriatic islands. The author of the books "Population of the Dalmatian Islands" (Zagreb, 1992) and "Islands - to Stay or Leave: a Study on Daily Circulation from the Šibenik Islands" with co-authors Drago Babić and Sonja Podgorelec (Zagreb, 2001).

Wrote numerous scientific and professional papers for proceedings and journals. Editor of the book "Migrations in Croatia: a Regional Approach" (Zagreb, 1998).

Roko Mišetić (1969) graduated Geography at the Faculty of Science, University of Zagreb with the topic in demogeography. Since 2001 he is a postgraduate student at the same faculty, with the topic entitled "Geographic Basis of Spatial Planning and Arrangement". He is a collaborating expert at the Institute for Migrations and Ethnic Studies, and demographic topics are his primary interest.

Rebeka Mesarić-Žabčić (1971) Ph.D., graduated in History and Geography. In 1999 she earned her M.Sc. degree at the Department of Geography, Faculty of Science at the University in Zagreb. Since 2000 she has been employed at the Institute of Migrations and Ethnic studies in Zagreb and her research work relates to Croatian emigrants. Participates in the projects "Croatian Diaspora" and "Croatian Migrant Communities: Affiliation and Multiculturalism". In 2001 she was elected a national coordinator of the Republic of Croatia in the international project "Migration and Intercultural Relations - Challenge for European Schools Today", Comenius 2-3 Inservice Training Course. In 2002, she was awarded a scientific-research grant for the University in Stavanger (Norway) funded by the Research Center from Oslo. The author of a number of scientific and professional papers in national and international scientific journals.

Maja Štambuk (1947) Ph.D., a senior research associate at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences. Her research interest is focused on the rural sociology and she has published more than fifty scientific and professional papers in journals, books and proceedings. She was a principal investigator in several domestic scientific projects. For several years she was editing the journal Rural Sociology. At the Croatian Studies she has been lecturing rural sociology. At present, she is Editor-in-Chief of the journal Social Research.

Anka Mišetić (1964) Ph.D., a sociologist, research associate at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences. Her primary field of interest is urban sociology. She took part or worked independently on several Institute's research projects. Published about a dozen of scientific and professional papers.

Jasna Čapo Žmegač, Ph.D. is a research advisor at the Institute for Ethnology and Folklore Research in Zagreb. She received her bachelor degree in Ethnology and French Language from the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Zagreb, and completed her postgraduate studies in Cultural Anthropology and Demography at the Berkeley University of California, SAD. She has been a guest lecturer at several universities in Croatia and abroad. Her research interest is focused on: history of a family, history of Croatian ethnology, identity construction, forced migration and Croatian economic migrants in Germany. She is the author of a number of books and scientific papers.

Vladimir Geiger (1962) Ph.D., graduated and earned his doctorate in History at the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Zagreb. He is a senior research associate at the Croatian Institute for History in Zagreb. He has published several books and a number of scientific and professional papers focused on the problems of Germans in Croatia.

Dragutin Babić (1958) Ph.D., sociologist. At the Institute for Migration and Ethnic Studies he is primarily engaged in the research of forced migration. The author of a number of papers dealing with this topic.

Vlado Puljiz (1938) Ph.D., received his undergraduate education at the Faculty of Law, University of Zagreb. He had spent two years doing his doctoral work in France (Montpellier), and received his Ph.D. at the Faculty of Law in 1975. Over the sixties and seventies he had been engaged in the research at the Center for Rural, Urban and Spatial Sociology at IDIS. At that time he was an Editor-in-Chief of the journal Rural Sociology. In the period 1976-1988 he was teaching Sociology at the Faculty for Defectology (current Education and Rehabilitation Center). After that he transferred to the Faculty of Law - Study of Social Work where he presently teaches and acts as a Head of the Department for Social Policy. In the year 1994 he established, and until 2002 edited "Journal for Social Policy. Over the past ten years his research interests are focused on history and social policy systems. He also devoted a lot of attention to demographic aspects and family policy.

Snježana Mrđen (1956) Ph.D., is an assistant professor at the Department for Geography, University in Zadar. She received her bachelor and M.Sc. degrees from the Department for Geography at the Faculty of Science, University in Zagreb (field: demogeography). She received her Ph.D. at the École des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales in Paris and earned the title of a Doctor in Demography and Social Sciences. Specialized at the Institut National d'Etudes Démographiques in Paris for five years (1990 - 1994) where she spent the years 1998 and 1999 as a visiting scientist. The author of more than 15 scientific and professional papers and publications in the field of demography published in the country and abroad. She took and active part in twenty international scientific congresses, conferences and meetings - in France, Great Britain, Spain, Tunisia, Italy, Greece, Macedonia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Switzerland and China. As a researcher she has participated in several international scientific projects. She is a member of the three international societies (AIDELF, BSPS, IUSSP), and the member of the Management Board in one of them (AIDELF). Also the member of the Scientific Board of the journal Balkanologie (Paris) and Editorial Board of the scientific journal Demographie des Balkans (Pariz-Volos). Since 1997 she acts as a representative of the Republic of Croatia in the European Committee for Demography (CHP) at the European Council. As a member of the High Level Expert Group of the European Council and European Union, she took part in the International Mission monitoring the 2002 census in Macedonia and in 2003 monitoring the processing of the census results.

Marinko Grizelj actively participates in state statistics and in early nineties he was a coordinator of the project Demographic Trends and Processes in the Territory of Former SFRY. In that period he was a member of the Working Group for the Development of the Strategy of Croatia at the Ministry of Development and Reconstruction. After the Homeland War he works jointly with a group of demographers at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences on the project "Trends of the Total Number of Inhabitants in the Republic of Croatia since 1991 Census to 1998 and Quantification of Selected Components. He is the Head of the Working Group for Population Projections of the Croatian Population at the Croatian Bureau for Statistics.

Marijan Križić (1955) graduated at the Faculty of Economics, University of Zagreb. Since December 1994, as a Head of the Ministry of Development and Reconstruction, he participated in the establishment of the National Program for Demographic Development. As the assistant of the head of the State Institute for the Protection of Family, Maternity and Youth, Zagreb he participated in the development of acts dealing with family-related topics (maternal leave, new act concerning child's allowance, etc.). Participated in international meetings in Budapest (1988) in the Hague Forum (1999) and the UN General Assembly Special Conference(1999) - dedicated to the implementation of the Program of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, held in Cairo 1994. Wrote a number of texts, majority of which refer to demographic and family problems. As a tutor he participated in 1991 and 2001 censuses. Held a series of lectures and participated in round table discussions as well as in radio and TV programs addressing primarily demographic and family topics.