

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Jadranka Švarc, PhD, is a scientific advisor at the Ivo Pilar Institute of Social Sciences, Zagreb. She holds an MA in information sciences and a PhD in sociology from the University of Zagreb. Her research interest and expertise focus on the role of scientific, technological and innovation system in the socio-economic progress and on the socio-cultural and political aspects of the knowledge-based society. She has worked as an innovation expert in various national, FP7 and Horizon EU projects (SIS, RIO, ERAWATCH, WBC-INCO.NET, METRIS, MASIS, MoRRi). She is evaluator for several internationally refereed journals, national scientific projects and, recently, for European project reports. Švarc has published two books, over 50 scientific papers, and close to 40 expert studies. She has participated in over 40 scientific conferences.

Jasminka Lažnjak is a full professor at the Department of Sociology of the University of Zagreb where she teaches Society and Technology, Sociology of Work and Organization and Economic Sociology. She holds MA and PhD degrees in sociology from the University of Zagreb. Her main areas of research include science, technology and society studies, sociology of innovation and sociology of work and organization. She has worked on projects dealing with innovation culture and S&T, and innovation policy analyses on the national level. She has participated in several FP7 and Horizon 2020 Science in Society projects (MASIS, MORE II, Open Transparent and Merit Based Recruitment of Researchers, Responsible research and innovation) and the WBC INCO-NET project. Currently she is president of the Croatian Sociological Association